BETTING ON BALL GAME

POLICE FAVORITES OVER THE CUSTOM HOUSE.

Barney Joy Says He Will Smuggle a
Few Strikes Past the Other Batters.
Line-up.

There is more interest being taken in the baseball game this afternoon than in almost any other game which has been played here this season. The Police and the Custom House teams are to cross bats on the Punahou grounds.

They are thought to be well matched although the police are slightly the favorites in the betting. Last night some bets were made at 8 to 5 on the Police. Today the odds dropped, to 7 to 5. The report that first baseman Scanlon of the Custom House had developed a sudden increase of speed in his base running caused the supporters of the police to feel somewhat apprehensive. Captain Chillingworth of the Police team says he has gotten out of worse fixes before and if his followers will only hang together, instead of separately, he thinks they will succeed in winning.

Barney Joy occupies the pitcher's box for the Police and he thinks he has a few curves that he will succeed in smuggling past the batters from the Custom House.

Captain Becker will be on hand with his band and the instant that anybody calls for a "High ball," the band will begin to play "Oh Give Us a Drink Harder."

The game has been called for 3 p. m. and but it is not probable that play will be commenced before 3:30 p. m. The line-up of both teams is as follows:

Police and Customs House baseball teams will meet this afternoon at the Punahou grounds. Both teams are on edge and it is expected that a close game will result. The band will be in attendance. Following is the line-up.

STATUS OF TERRITORIES

THE INSULAR DECISIONS ARE DEPENDENT.

The Judge Who First Heard and Decided the Case Reviews the Constitutional Questions.

DENVER, Colo., August 23.—The annual dinner of the American Bar Association was held here this evening. A large number of toasts were responded to. W. H. Hensel, of Pennsylvania, was toastmaster. The most notable response was by Judge William K. Townsend, of the United States district court, New Haven, Conn., who originally decided the Puerto Rican tariff cases, the decision of which by the supreme court has caused so much comment.

His remarks were as follows: "Mr. Chairman, I was greatly interested yesterday in the satirical, though forcible address of the eminent gentleman from Maine. I honor his courage, ability and independence, but sir, I listened in vain throughout the entire address for any statement of law or fact to support his assertion that the decision of the supreme court was contrary to precedent and authority."

"From the time of the Louisiana purchase, in 1803, down to the treaty of Spain in 1898, the treaty making power of the government has exercised the right to deal as it saw fit with the status of inhabitants of ceded territory, and, as Mr. Justice Brown says in his opinion, the statutes passed in pursuance of the Louisiana purchase show the view of congress that a discrimination in favor of foreign vessels trading with the ports of a newly acquired territory is no violation of the clause of the constitution that declares that no preference shall be given to the ports of one state over those of another. The same practical construction was put upon the constitution in the case of the purchase of Florida and in the annexation of Hawaii."

"Now, gentlemen, 100 years ago the supreme court of the United States said that contemporaneous construction, especially when long acquiesced in, was very strong, if not controlling, with reference to the provisions of the constitution. In Insurance Company versus Cauler Chief Justice Marshall expressly left open the question whether any act of congress was necessary to incorporate the inhabitants of newly acquired territory. For 100 years we have acted on the theory that such act of congress was necessary that the imposition of different rates of duty was not in violation of the constitution, and in our civil war we stamped out the theory that the constitution followed the flag.

"And so, gentlemen, I rejoice in this great decision of the supreme court, that the framers of the constitution must have intended that this country should not come forth born as a cripple into the family of nations, but that she should possess all the essential attributes of sovereignty which would enable her to govern her possessions according to the best interests of the American people, and subject only to those prohibitive provisions of the constitution which guarantee protection against interference with natural rights."

UNFEMININE.

"George, dear," said Mrs. Speedway, as she followed her husband to the door after breakfast, "I wish you would leave me some money. I am quite out, and several little bills are coming in today."

"Certainly, little woman," replied Mr. Speedway. "I am sorry you found it necessary to ask me. I ought to have asked you if you needed money. How much would you like?"

"About $10,"

"Why so unfeminine a sum, dear?" asked Mr. Speedway.

"Unfeminine," she queried. "I do not understand."

"Yes, $10 is unfeminine. You should have asked for $2.57. However, here's the tenner, and you needn't give me back the change."—Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette.

THAT TIRED FEELING.

What constitutes a load depends on the strength of the man or beast who has to carry it and the conditions under which he carries it. We hear people continually talk of being tired who have not done a sufficient amount of work to make them so. This sensation is popularly spoken of as "that tired feeling." People who have it often take stimulants to drive it away; the relief, however, is but momentary. A relapse follows and they feel more weary and depressed than before. For the trouble is not in the muscles but in the blood. Certain humors or poisons, arising from indigestion or otherwise, deprive the blood of its sustaining life-giving power, producing a result similar to what would follow from too much exertion and too little rest. But whereas in the case of a healthy person the tired feeling would pass away under the influence of sleep and repose, it is not so in this instance. On the contrary, sleep itself is broken and imperfect, and the sufferer rises in the morning unrefreshed and feeling as heavy and dull as when he went to bed. An effective remedy like WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION is needed to purge the blood of the impurities which prostrate the nerves and sap the sources of physical vigor. It is palatable as honey and contains the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. In all cases of Wasting Disease, Rheumatism, Bowel Complaints, Fevers, Poverty of Blood, Weakness and lack of Nervous Tone, it comes more nearly to being a specific than any other known remedy. You may trust it on its merits. Effective from the first dose. "You cannot be disappointed in it." Sold by all chemists.
